From Pastor Heather

JOY!

It is so easy to hear the news of day and become down. It seems that this world we live in is going through a very hard time. I want to encourage all of us to take on a new spiritual discipline-seeking to reflect God's joy. Joy is hard discipline, but when it is practiced it is easier to shine the light of God's love in the world. Together let us work together to find the Joy that only comes from God that will help sustain us through troubled political times.

To help us get started, here are some wise words about JOY to inspire you. Choose one that speaks to your heart and put it in a place you will see every day. (Some ideas-use post it notes, put it as your screen saver on your phone or computer, use dry erase markers to write it on a mirror or window you frequently look into.)

When you see it, read it and ask God to help you live out God's joy that day. When you experience a moment of joy, share it with others. "Joy is in fact contagious." Archbishop Desmond Tutu

"Joy does not simply happen to us. We have to choose joy and keep choosing it every day." Henri Nouwen

"Dear Child of God, you are loved with a love that nothing can shake, a love that loved you long before you were created, a love that will be there long after everything has disappeared. You are precious, with a preciousness that is totally quite immeasurable. And God wants you to be like God. Filled with life and goodness and laughter—and joy."
Archbishop Desmond Tutu

"These things I have spoken to you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be complete." John 15:11

"Be joyful always." 1 Thessalonians 5:16

"The joy of the Lord is my strength." Nehemiah 8:10

"But let all who take refuge in you rejoice; let them ever sing for joy." Psalm 5:11

"You turned my mourning into dancing; you have taken off my sackcloth and clothed me with you." Psalm 30:11

"In your presence is fullness of joy." Psalm 16:11

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord." Psalm 100:1

Mark Your Calendars

Our Curate, Rev Deacon Ha`aheo Guanson will be ordained here at St. Clement's on Saturday, March 9 at 10 am. Plan now to be part of this wonderful celebration.

Ordination of Mark Haworth+

Many St. Clementians were in attendance to celebrate the ordination of Mark Haworth+ on Saturday, January 12, at St. John the Baptist Episcopal Church in Waianae. The St. Clement's choir performed accompanied by the bell choir from St. Elizabeth's Episcopal. Photos by Arthur Buto and Deborah Candace Love.

A View from the Pew

“Now the heavens and the earth were completed and all their host.

*And God completed on the seventh day
the work God had done.*

And God ceased on the seventh day from all the work God had done.

And God blessed the seventh day and made it Holy.

For thereon God ceased from all the work of Creation God had done.”

Genesis 2:1-3 / The Complete Jewish Bible

Epiphany is almost over and, the question begs, will epiphanies never cease? I hope not.

Epiphany comes from the Greek “epipháneia,” a compound of the Greek “epi,” meaning appropriate or fitting, and “phaino,” meaning reveal or appear. Yet, in our haste to uncover what we consider paramount mysteries past and present, we often overlook small but important clues which would help us solve them. For example, take the above passage from Genesis. Almost every Christian Bible translates from Hebrew into English that God “rested” on the seventh day of Creation. On the other hand, most Jewish Bibles translate God “ceased” or “abstained” from further Creation. The Jewish Bibles which do translate “rest” do so in the context of God “desisting” from God’s labor, meaning what God had been doing the previous “six days.” In Islam, the translation of the Koran from the Arabic is the same, to “cease” or “abstain,” along with a gentle reminder to their Jewish and Christian siblings who translate “rest,” their fellow “Children of the Book,” that God never “rests.”

I bring this up because, as we all know, Church attendance and membership has dropped over the past 40 years, not only in our Episcopal denomination, but in the Christian religion overall, and it is no different with any other religion in this country or elsewhere, in particular the developed world. I cannot speak about other religions or denominations, but the Episcopal Church has a number of initiatives at the national, diocesan, and parish levels addressing this issue which, if we think about it, is not about “attendance” or “membership,” but about the spiritual well-being of everyone close to us and distant, near to us and far away, now and in the future. These initiatives have identified a number of reasons for the decline. I won’t list them all. In fact, I won’t mention a single one, as we all share many of the same conclusions. However, there is one reason I have not seen identified, at least not clearly, and that is our disassociation between encountering, worshipping, and having union with God.

It was not long ago in human history and development when it never occurred to us that our bodies, minds, and souls might be separate. We were one. We were singular and, in the Judeo-Christian tradition at least, you see this awareness revealed not only in the stories of the Prophet Elijah in the Old Testament and Jesus Christ in the New Testament with their respective bodily ascensions into Heaven, but in the debates about the Resurrection between Jewish Sadducees and Pharisees, as well as in the Letters of the Apostle Paul about the nature of us being mutually inclusive members of the Body of Christ. In fact, we considered ourselves one with God, too, if only because God created us in God’s own image, meaning God is revealed in us, and vice versa.

There was a time in our relationship with God when our encounters with, worship of, and union with God were similarly one and the same thing. I am not suggesting our rites, rituals, and ceremonies now separate us from God, nor our clergy and lay ministers for that matter. On the contrary, all of these naturally arose and evolved from our encounters with, worship of, and union with God. I am arguing, however, as we become more dualistic in the ways we look at ourselves, Creation, and God, that we have separated ourselves from ourselves, from Creation, and from God, so that it only follows we have likewise separated ourselves from our rites, rituals, and ceremonies we created to encounter, worship, and have union with God. We have arrived at a point, whether we realize it or not, where many if not most of us participate in these rites, rituals, and ceremonies for the sake of the rites, rituals, and ceremonies themselves. Moreover, as we realize “the Emperor has no clothes,” instead of questioning ourselves, our dualism, and the dualistic spiritual world we have created for us and one another, we blame the rites, rituals, and ceremonies for our dilemma, ponder our belief and faith in God, and we stay home and sleep in.

I have no epiphany. What occurs to me, however, especially in the many vivid and colorful stories in the Old Testament, which most of us interpret as random festivities, celebrations, and revelries among the faithful, is that the faithful were in actuality worshipping God in the Temple. No doubt there were many rules to abide by, and no doubt Temple priests were hovering nearby to ensure the rules were followed. Yet, within this environ, the music, the dancing, and the singing was, for all practical purposes, not just unchoreographed, but spontaneous.

These people were the faithful, in the Temple, in the presence of God and one another, communing with one another in the Name of God and, as a result, communing with God’s very self. Even more, in the process of revealing and reveling in their love of God in these very simple, joy-filled ways, they were revealing and reveling in their love for one another too, their fellow images of God. In my very being, my body, mind and soul, these scenes in the Temple shout-out God revealed in the people, just as much as they shout-out the people revealed in God. God was there, really there, if only because the people were there in God’s name, and God was singing and dancing, clanging and crashing cymbals, too.

*“Praise GOD with a blast of the shofar!
Praise GOD with lute and lyre!
Praise GOD with timbrels and dancing!
Praise GOD with flutes and strings!
Praise GOD with clanging cymbals!
Praise GOD with loud crashing cymbals!
Let everything that has breath praise ADONAI!”*

Psalms 150:3-6 / The Complete Jewish Bible
